WONDERFUL Spirit Medium

One of the most important archaeological discoveries of recent years has just been made at Gonnah near the Nile at Egypt. The archaeological society has just unearthed what is plainly a mummy of the Golden Age—and among the articles found on the spot are some of the most remarkable written offerings yet discovered.

One hundred and thirty-eight marble shafts or inscriptions, some which it is plain that the shrine was devoted to Artemis as a goddess of children. "Artemis gratia."

But scholars have discovered, among the many wonders, that the patient crew has put a punch in milk that necessitates the addition of no product to the milk—except the milk itself in the human system. It has discovered a new and a harmless "bracer."

Always in Same Place.

"Conductor," said the funny old lady, "are you sure this train will take me to Bunkerville?"

"I'm positively certain that it will, madam. I've been traveling this route for twenty years, and to the best of my knowledge Bunkerville has never closed up yet."

A Violent Job.

"I understand Miss Berwick is thinking of getting married."

"That has been the understanding heretofore for the past fifteen years," answered the town gossip.

Program.

"Just out, old pal!"

"Yes, I was in a quand up to a week ago."

"How much was yer bit?"

"I did five years' on 'em."

"Gosh, to reform, old pal!"

"Now, I'm gosh, to reform, old pal!"

Shocks Awaiting Laggard Lovers

By LAURA JEAN LIBBY

Do you think because you fall in love and find each other possible because that from out the heart I save you. My strong love can save today?

What would any man expect his love to be? He would expect his love to be a friend, and begin to cast sheep's eyes on other men as possible because that from out the heart I save you. My strong love can save today?

A pretty girl once had one of those laggard lovers of whom she thought a great deal. But the question he would not, who escorted her home. They encountered the old bent. His girl was straightaway aroused. This sight of her with another showed him how dear she was to him. The question faced him as to what life would be without her if he should know her. He called that evening and lost no time in asking her to be his wife, declaring that an open confession was made for the soul. He had been too sure of her and because of that came near losing her.

The girl who did not devote all of her time to one lover. She treats him as she finds him—simply as a friend—until he has given her reason to be sure of her. There would be no long-drawn-out courtships which end in parting if girls pursued this plan.

Men are at fault in setting upon girls steadily when they have no serious intentions of matrimony. If they call upon many young women, making no secret of the fact, they are sure to be disappointed at last.

There are a few little things about girls that men should remember. One is that their interest is keenest in a young man during the stage of their earliest acquaintance. After that, if he is not a good friend, he is not a good friend. He has only himself to blame.
